The village of Les Baux-de-Provence, perched on a spur of rock, has an incredibly diverse architectural heritage including an extraordinarily beautiful citadel that towers over the surrounding countryside.

The exceptional decor brings memories of the past back to life, upholds traditions, is home to the art of the people who lived here and plays host to prestigious events.

It is not just a place steeped in history, though. It has much more to offer. The tradition of providing visitors with a warm welcome is as present as ever in its gourmet restaurants and delightful hotels that play host to celebrity guests.

The Baux-de-Provence appellation is a symbol of quality.

Its vines, grown on sun-drenched rocky soil, produce generous wines. Its olive oil is warm and fruity.

Set in the heart of the Alpilles regional country park, Les Baux-de-Provence is a listed heritage site that has won titles such as “one of the Most Beautiful Villages in France” or “an Outstanding Centre for Flavoursome Food”. In fact, the village is unique because it is just that bit more famous than others, and just a bit more magical. And the essence that gives Provençal villages their very special atmosphere and fragrance is here too – small squares, well-shaded terraces, narrow streets and small shops.

Van Gogh’s immense production, which evolved radically over the years, from The Potato Eaters (1885) to The Starry Night (1889) not to mention Sunflowers (1888) and Bedroom in Arles (1889), is projected on to Les Carrières’ gigantic stone.
The clouds, suns and portraits, with their singular style, come to life on walls more than 15 metres high, conjuring up the artist’s inner world, both excessive and chaotic, yet so poetic.
The visitor travels along this themed journey through the various stages of his life, of his stays in Arles, Paris and Saint-Rémy, right to the heart of his works, from his earliest days through to maturity, with his sunny landscapes and night scenes, his portraits and still lifes.
The Dutch artist’s expressive, powerful brushstrokes reveal works with daring colours and an unrivalled style emphasising a permanent dialogue between light and shade.

Japan dreamt, images of a floating world
Directed by: Danny Rose
Les Carrières spring to life around the variations on a number of themes found in Japanese prints. The finesse of the drawing, the subtlety of the colouring and the purity of style carry the spectator away to a fascinating world that very strongly influenced the impressionist movement.

The Yves Brayer Museum is housed in one of the most beautiful mansions in the centre of the village, the Hôtel de Porcellet. It presents a wide-ranging retrospective of the works of this artist who was so fond of Mediterranean landscapes and who is one of the most representative exponents of figurative art in the 20th century.

In his youth, Yves Brayer was attracted by Spain then by Italy, and he powerfully expressed their specific characteristics in oils, gouaches and monotypes.

Fauvism and Harmony – Around Henri Manguin
4 mai – 10 octobre 2019

At the beginning of the 20th century some painters, having met at art school, became friends and found themselves in their commitment to innovation outside the official salons. Three different groups were to form. First there were the pupils from Gustave Moreau's studio, including Henri Manguin, Albert Marquet, Henri Matisse and Charles Camoin. Jean Puy joined them in about 1899. Then the duo from Chatou, Maurice de Vlaminck and André Derain who Matisse met in 1901. Followed by the painters from Le Havre: Raoul Dufy, Othon Friesz, who joined in 1905. In order to set the scene for our project we have also invited Paul Signac, Louis Valtat and Henri Edmond Cross owing to the significant role they played.

The birth of Fauvisme seems to have taken place around the end of 1903, when the students from the first group came to work in Manguin's studio, rue Boursault in Paris. Their emulation then led them to simplify their drawing, completely doing away with contours and only using pure colours to heighten the expressiveness of their paintings. The works of Derain and Vlaminck, who shared this same concept, were brought together, mischievously, in Room VII at the Salon d'Automne in 1905. The press went wild and the scandal threw them into the limelight. This excess of violence or "ordeal by fire" as it was also described, came to an end in the winter of 1906 - 1907 for the pioneers, and definitively in about 1909.

Shaken up by the Cubists, they had to put themselves into question. Some of them, seeking harmony, found a happy evolution in their reaction to Fauvism.

The museum of “santons” (figures for the Christmas crib) contains a vast number of exhibits including some outstanding figurines made in Naples, scenes illustrating the traditions of Provence and Les Baux linked to the Nativity.

The museum houses several different collections - Neapolitan figurines from the 17th and 18th centuries, 19th-century “santons” for churches whose painted papier mâché faces and glass sulphur eyes were made by the Carmelite convent in Avignon and figures by famous makers such as Carbonel, Fouque, Jouve, Peyron Campagna, Toussaint, Thérèse Neveu, Louise Berger, Simone Jouglas, etc.

The traditional ceremony of the Shepherds’ Offering, known locally as the “Pastrage”, is staged against the background of Les Baux-de-Provence, in front of the village church. A traditional Provençal Christmas crib and the everyday life of a 19th-century family are shown in two large windows. For children, a crowd of small brightly-coloured, naively-painted santons is placed at a height that they can reach.

A very large canvas, painted by Antoine Serra (1908-1995), depicting midnight mass at Baux-de-Provence has just been added to these unique collections. The history of this picture dates back to 24 December 1947 when the artist, who had a studio in the village, took part in the ceremony in Saint-Vincent’s church.

Open daily throughout the year.

AOP Vallée des Baux-de-Provence

Olive growers trade association

The three “Vallée des Baux-de-Provence” AOP.s ( appellations d’origine protégée) (guaranteed origin) labels for black crushed olives, pricked olives and olive oil were awarded on 31st August 1997, demonstrating the pure typicality of the fruits from the olive-trees from our Alpine foothills.

Salenques and beruguettes, crushed green olives flavoured with fennel uniquely express the “savours of the garrigue”. Ripe black pricked grossane olives are unlike any others and truly marry the ardour and aroma of Provence.

The final expression of the olive tree, competing with the colour of the Provence sun, is olive oil - the quintessence of know-how, our land and the tastes and scents of Southern France.

An AOP Vallée des Baux-de-Provence olive oil has two outstanding versions – “green fruit” (with its scents of raw artichokes, freshly-cut hay, wet grass, fresh almonds, green apples etc.) and “black fruit” (with its scents of preserved black olives, mushrooms, truffles, cooked artichokes, tapenade, cocoa and sour dough bread).

AOP Les Baux-de-Provence

Fashioned by nature...

In the heart of the Alpilles hills, in an unspoilt natural setting, the vineyards of Baux-de-Provence reveal all their splendour. Here, with the deep love that they have for the earth that is their heritage, the vine-growers place respect for the environment at the centre of their daily preoccupations to the extent that today the appellation is proud to say that 100% of its 244 hectares are farmed organically, using reasoned agriculture, or biodynamically.

Each winemaker crafts individual wines, red white and rosé, each with their own specific character: reds that are powerful and intense in the image of the terroir that gave them life, rosés full of gourmandise and highly aromatic whites.

Desirous to share their wines and their passion, the eleven domains of Baux-de-Provence open their doors to you. Whether on foot, by bicycle or in a car, just let yourself be guided. At the end of the route is a winemaker, a glass and some great wines to fall in love with!

In this place dating back to the end of the 15th century you can discover the works of the painter Aléos and of the sculptor Beggit.

The painter Aléos proposes his universe mixing contemporaneousness and onirism, where gold leaf and silver leaf come together with confronting colours, generating an atmosphere that invites you into this house and its ancient architecture to discover the highly personal style and craftsmanship of this artist who has been exhibiting his works in Baux-de-Provence for twelve years.

Aléos’ paintings can be found in a number of collections in France and abroad.

The bronze works of the sculptor Beggit are always made from living models. His talent and artistic sense allow him to sublimate feminity, sometimes in a classical style to highlight the gentleness of feminine curves and sometimes by marking the angles to accompany a movement or emphasize an energy.

“L’Aupiho” gourmet restaurant at the Domaine de Manville, rewarded by a Michelin star, gives pride of place to local produce and to the treasures of the Alpilles and Provence.
As a chef versed in the here and now, Lieven van Aken, Executive Chef, seeks inspiration in his immediate surroundings, the local terroir, discussions with his farmers and walks in the hills and mountains between the Alpilles and Mont Ventoux, redolent with the scents of citronella and thyme in flower.
Taste these wonderful flavours in the al fresco dining area, beside the fountain under age-old plane trees, in the conservatory or beside the fire in a private salon.

The Domaine de Manville has a renowned architect and landscaper designed 18-hole golf course allying technicality and game attraction in an eco-responsible and respectful way to produce a truly very special course. Course elements echo the former agricultural use of the land and region - geometric bunkers supported by stone walls, the shape of the greens, grassy rather than sandy bunkers on key holes, fairways bordered like former fields with olive groves and water as obstacles etc.

The balanced, moving course evokes many different sensations. A good technical course with great diversity in the design of each hole. 5508 meters long, it suits every playing level.
